Our Approach for Maximum Results

‘More practice, less theory’

The courses build on a tried-and-tested workshop concept. ‘More practice, less theory’ is our motto. Participants are actively involved in the interactive intensive courses and receive structured feedback from the course leader and other participants. Participants receive practical tools that they can immediately start using in their organisation.

Our course leaders – APMP certified and highly experienced

We only employ experienced course leaders with excellent track records. They are either highly experienced Consultants or Line Managers. Please let us know if you would like us to introduce them to you personally.

Quality. Guaranteed.

We guarantee quality. When participants’ average evaluation is not ‘good’ or ‘very good’, you are free to decide how much you would like to pay for the service provided, if anything.

Course location: What suits you?

Courses can take place at your premises, at a location of your choosing, or online (we use Zoom, Teams, or Alfaview). We are happy to help organise your course. We also run public courses - please ask about future dates.

Course length and dates

The classroom courses described are between one and three days duration. For online courses, we split a course day into three sessions of two to three hours. The earlier you book, the more flexible we can be with scheduling.

Optional live deal coaching after the course for long-lasting effects

To ensure lasting course impact, we help participants turn what they have learned into concrete proposals with live deal coaching. We organise these coaching sessions either at your premises or live via our online meeting platforms (Zoom, Teams, GoToMeeting). After the course, participants book a session to discuss elements of their current proposal directly with the course leader (e.g. phrasing the executive summary). This allows participants to efficiently put the course content into action, meaning they can integrate the methodology into their daily practice.

Expand course scope at a reasonable price with online courses

You have the option to extend the courses' scope with webinars or e-learning modules. For example, your bid team can take the storyline course in person and your sales team can take it online. We are available to discuss the various possibilities for using this blended learning approach to create your ideal training programme which provides long-lasting results.

Experts

Available Formats:

Classroom
Training

Live Webinars

Languages:

EN, DE, others on request

A successful proposal comes down to having the right proposal strategy and convincing arguments. The 'message tree' workshop shows participants how to use a message tree to systematically develop a proposal strategy and a logically structured, understandable storyline. The course focuses on formulating key messages which can be used during your sales pitch, bid and proposal presentation.

The course is aimed at proposal managers and all professionals who write proposals, as well as at sales representatives. The methodology used can be applied to all B2B sales situations.

The course also prepares you to pass the APMP Bid and Proposal Writing Micro Certification.

Content

- Participants get to know the key factors involved in a successful bid
- Participants develop key messages and a logical, conclusive and convincing storyline with the help of a message tree
- Participants practise working with style guides and formulating proposals using real examples to create persuasive proposal content
- Participants apply the basic rules for creating a compelling executive summary and apply the message tree for the proposal presentation. (Standard course only)

Workshop Approach

- 1-day or 2-day interactive workshop with up to 15 participants (respectively 3 or 6 online sessions of 2-3 hours)
- Short inputs and practical tools
- Exercises and practical examples
- Specific, structured feedback from the course leader and participants
- Optional: Live deal coaching (see below)

Requirements

- No prior knowledge or experience required

Variations and Options

Available variations of this course:

- Storyline workshop for sales teams or SMEs (Subject Matter Experts)
- Storyline workshop for management consultants

Options:

- Live deal coaching for long-term results:

To ensure the course's impact will last, we help participants turn what they have learned into concrete proposals with coaching (either live via our online meeting platform (Zoom, Teams or Alfaview) or in person at your offices.

- The Ultimate Bid and Proposal Compendium (special rate for participants):

It is the most comprehensive guide to winning bids, tenders and proposals. It's packed with lots of hands-on examples and best practice guidance to develop winning proposals.

Creating Convincing Graphics and Illustrations

— maximise your bid's impact with convincing images

A picture tells 1000 words. That applies to proposals, too. Convincing images greatly influence client decisions.

This workshop explains how you can create convincing charts, illustrations and visualisations so that your message is well received.

The workshop focuses on the conceptual design of images with simple tools (such as PowerPoint.)

The course also prepares you to pass the APMP Graphics Micro Certification.

Content

- Participants discover examples of 'good', 'not so good' and 'bad' charts and images
- Participants recognise the difference between quantitative and qualitative charts and learn how to use them correctly (infographics)
- Participants can use colours, fonts and shapes correctly
- Participants learn to apply the 10 second rule
- Participants discover how to convey the right message with images
- Participants learn valuable PowerPoint tricks

Workshop Approach

- 1-day interactive workshop with up to 15 participants (respectively 3 online sessions of 2-3 hours)
- Short conceptual inputs and practical tools
- Exercises and practical examples
- Specific, structured feedback from the course leader and participants

Requirements

- Basic knowledge of Microsoft PowerPoint

The executive summary is the most important part of your proposal and the part your client will read in the most detail. Here you need to show your client why they must accept your proposal and not the competition's. This workshop is aimed at all proposal professionals and at sales representatives who often have to write executive summaries.

The 5-box structure enables you to give your reader a convincing first impression of your proposal, as it gives them an overview from just the first few paragraphs whilst positively influencing them.

The course also prepares you to pass the APMP Executive Summaries Micro Certification.

Content

- Executive summary audience/readers
- Typical errors to avoid
- Executive summary 5-box structure (content and structure)
- Writing and style rules
- Charts and images in the executive summary
- General tips and tricks for successful executive summaries

Workshop Approach

- 1-day interactive workshop with up to 15 participants (respectively 3 online sessions of 2-3 hours)
- Short inputs and practical tools
- Creating an executive summary using a recent example
- Specific, structured feedback from the course leader and participants
- Optional: Live deal coaching (see below)

Requirements

Risk Management for Proposal Managers

– the right way to deal with opportunities and risks

Dealing with opportunities and risks in the right way during the bid process greatly influences your chances of winning an RFP as well as its profit margin. It is therefore key for bid/proposal managers to identify and assess opportunities and risks and develop strategies to reduce risks' negative financial impact.

This course provides participants with indispensable methods and uses practical examples, so they can recognise risks and opportunities early on in the proposal process and deal with them appropriately. Participants are able to put what they learn into practice quickly with the help of checklists and tools. The course is designed for bid and proposal managers as well as sales representatives.

Content

- Participants get to know the most important risk categories in the bid process
- Participants learn how to identify opportunities and risks, their meaning in the bid process and their subsequent use in different projects
- Participants practise qualitatively and quantitatively assessing opportunities and risks using tools and methods, in order to systematically understand them
- Participants learn and practise creating risk strategies to reduce risks and their negative financial impact

Winning public contracts can be very attractive. Public order volumes are generally relatively large in comparison to most private contracts.

It is important to know the particularities of public contracts so as not to make any procedural errors which would lead to your proposal being excluded.

This workshop explains the public tender system and participants discover the strategies, methods and tricks which are key to winning more public contracts.

In this course you will learn how to create a successful proposal without violating the rules of public tenders.

Content

- Participants get to know the most important rules and particularities of public tenders.
- Participants learn a structure for analysing tender documents
- Bid or no bid? The particular importance of qualification for public tenders
- Where do I find public tenders? How can I assess them?
- Participants discover how they can use public tenders to maximise their added value. They practise creating proposal texts which are not only compliant, but which also show the value of their service.
- Strategies, methods and tricks for responding to public tenders

Workshop Approach

- 1-day interactive workshop with up to 15 participants (respectively 3 online sessions of 2-3 hours)
- Short inputs and practical tools
- Exercises and real examples
- Specific, structured feedback from the course leader and participants
- Optional: Live deal coaching (see below)

Requirements

- No prior knowledge or experience required

Variations and Options

Available variations of this course:

- Winning public RFPs in Switzerland (based on Swiss procurement law)

Options:

Professional opportunity management (=capture management) is the key to successfully preparing a proposal.

Systematically discovering, understanding, analysing, planning and nurturing your opportunities leads to a measurably higher success rate.

In this workshop, participants will discover how to effectively manage an opportunity in order to maximise their likelihood of winning.

The workshop covers the entire sales cycle, from identifying the opportunity to the negotiation process.

Content

- You will learn how client needs develop into concrete demands and how they respond to the buying centre's real drivers and needs.

Pricing and Value Creation

– how to identify and calculate the ‘right’ price

Finding the ‘right’ price is the hardest part of managing a bid.

This pricing workshop helps you to understand how clients assess their prices and which pricing strategies you can use. Participants also learn which factors are essential when calculating the right price.

As well as pricing itself, we also give you lots of helpful psychological tricks to make your price appear attractive to the client.

Content

- Participants learn how clients perceive and assess prices
- Participants develop various price strategies
- Participants discover the price components and methods they need to know in order to set the ‘right’ price
- Participants learn why ‘price’ and ‘value’ often have nothing to do with each other
- Participants learn about the ‘price trap’
- Participants learn various price presentation tricks

Workshop Approach

- 1-day interactive workshop with up to 15 participants (respectively 3 online sessions of 2-3 hours)
- Short inputs and practical tools
- Exercises and practical examples
- Specific, structured feedback from the course leader and participants
- Optional: Live deal coaching (see below)

Successful Price / Contract Negotiations

— achieve better results and save your margins by carrying out successful price and contract negotiations

Negotiation skills are a strategic factor for success. With the right tool set, you will achieve better results and save your margins by carrying out successful price and contract negotiations.

The workshop uses a proven, very interactive workshop concept with short theoretical inputs and real-life examples and useful practical tools. To get as real as possible, we will go through a series of exercises and role-plays using your own case examples.

Content

- Foundation of negotiations (challenges for negotiators, about procurement, their typical approaches etc.)
- The Four Negotiation Principles (based on the Harvard Principle) and how to use them in real negotiation situations
- Special situation 'Price Negotiation': What's different to 'standard' negotiations and how to find out whether the buyer is bluffing or not

Technical documents tend to be dry, complicated and often dull to read. You can do better!

This course demonstrates how to create technical documents that appeal to both technical experts as well as less knowledgeable readers.

We show you how to structure a document, how you choose the right key messages and how to convert the content into an effective and easy to understand document.

The participants use real examples to transform boring, dry texts into convincing documents which are worth reading.

Content

- Foundation: What makes a document interesting and worth reading?
- Learn about reader needs and the different types of reader
- Lessons from journalists: key messages and document structure
- Choosing the right language, golden style rules
- Measuring document quality
- In the 2-day version, participants also learn how to convincingly communicate technical elements in a presentation and about the role of images

Workshop Approach

- 1-day or 2-day interactive workshop with up to 15 participants (respectively 3 or 6 online sessions of 2-3 hours)
- Short inputs and practical tools
- Exercises and practical role examples
- Specific, structured feedback from the course leader and participants

This is the right place for you if you –as a bid center manager and manager– aim at leading your bid team more efficiently and make it more successful. In this intense workshop series, you will learn the most important levers, tools and methods to make your area of responsibility even more successful.

It is aimed at all those who have overall responsibility for bid/proposal management in the company: bid/proposal directors, bid managers, head of bid/proposal management. In other words, everyone who leads a team of bid/proposal managers. It doesn't matter whether "Director" is on your business card or not.

Content

- Successful Bid Centre Management
- Effectively manage workload fluctuations
- Integration of the bid centre into the overall organisation
- Effective process management (incl. qualification, kick-off and reviews)
- Effectively save costs and minimise workload in bid management
- Use tools and tools sensibly
- Cooperation with other departments (sales, pre-sales, product management, etc.)
- Development of an action plan to optimise your bid setup

Workshop Approach

- 3 live and interactive online workshops in small groups
- Each session lasts 90-120 minutes and takes place at weekly intervals to fit optimally into everyday work.
- Christopher S. Kälin provides best practice inputs, which are then discussed together in a practical context. The intensive exchange between the participants offers valuable suggestions for one's own environment.
- Participants are provided with checklists and models

Requirements

- Participants must have management responsibility over a bid centre.

Live Deal Coaching

Live Deal Coaching

— for long-lasting results you will leverage every day

To ensure the course's impact will last long after the course, we help participants turn what they have learned into concrete proposals with live deal coaching.

Online or live in-person

We organise these coaching sessions either at your office or live via our online meeting platforms (Zoom or Teams).

After the course, participants book an online session and can then discuss elements of the current proposal directly with the course leader (e.g. phrasing the executive summary). We can also meet at your premises to discuss a specific bid situation.

1:1 real-life application

Participants can therefore efficiently put the course content into action, meaning they can integrate the methodology into their daily routine in the long term.

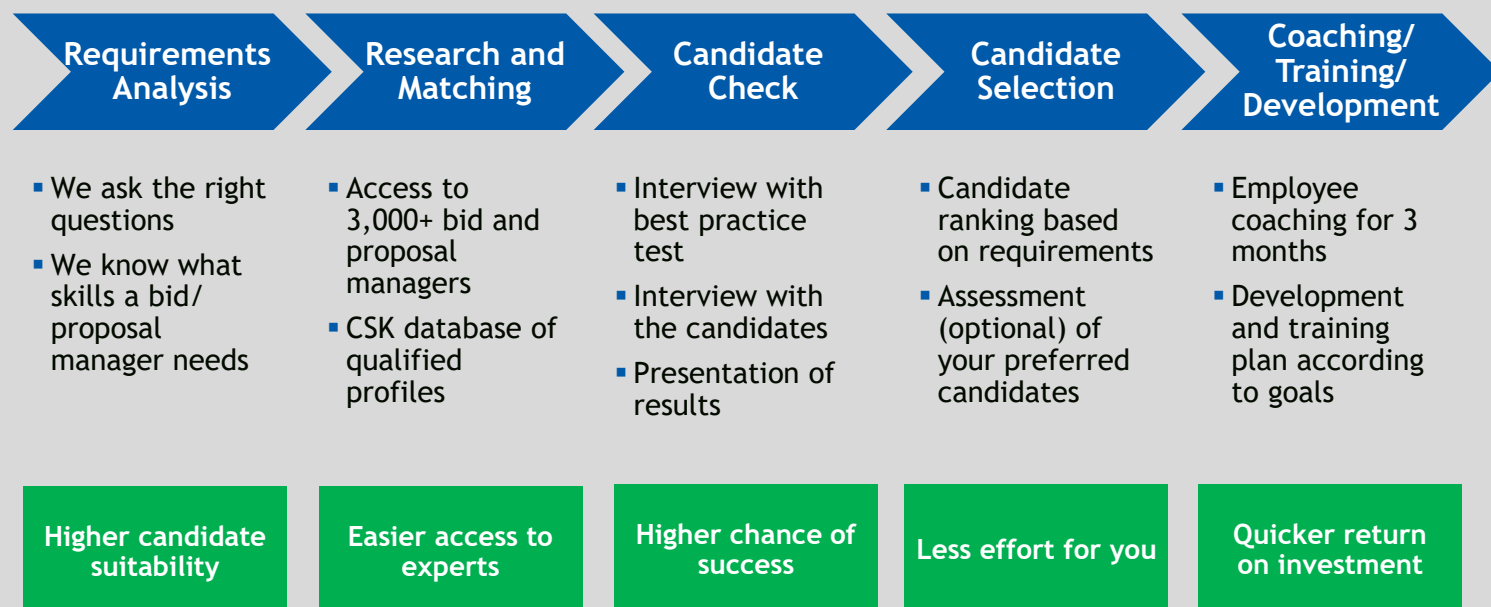

We generally do the live deal coaching immediately after the workshop. Ideally, it should be done within three months following the workshop. Coaching can be booked by the hour (for online meetings) or by the day (for in-person sessions.)

‘Thank you very much for the great support. Without your materials, sample exams and timely support I would have not cleared my CF APMP exams yesterday. I am really grateful. The coursework was a blast.’
